

Introduction

The message in this book is well overdue for people to analyze a woman's power. Most women are actually stronger as a whole than most men! Society usually just advertises men as the stronger sex. But being strong is more than just muscle use, and most women have the whole package of being strong!

Most men go around thinking that they can physically wear the average woman out sexually, which is really just the opposite. Women are stronger or just have the ability to last longer in sexual acts than the average man. Some men die in sexual acts due to not realizing a woman's power.

There are so many hard core thugs/drug dealers who sell drugs for different reasons. Some reasons are poverty, bad environment, ability to possess the finer things in life and just being able to acquire quick money. But another reason that goes overlooked is that some men sell drugs unconsciously for the reason of impressing some (not all) women who are looking for a bad boy with street credibility!

This book will discuss how women have been leading in positive ways since the beginning of times, but never really get enough credit for it! There have been several female presidents in the world that aren't really discussed in a male-dominated society.

The main concept of this book will show how women actually run the world and how they can help hold up or destroy the world due to their Silent Power!

Chapter 1

WOMEN'S INFLUENTIAL POWER

Western Society as a whole has gotten away from the word "One", which is a word that some of the Eastern hemisphere revolves around. I recommend everyone to read upon Eastern philosophy like Bruce Lee's writings. We (Western Hemisphere) think of ourselves as individuals who have a specific race, gender and religion. But in reality, we are all one human kind that's connected to the four elements of life, which are earth, air, water, and fire. God made Adam from the dirt (earth) and used air to bring him to life. This process shows how humans came from the elements of life. If the elements of life produce a tornado, hurricane (Katrina), earthquake or volcano; all humans will eventually be affected mentally or physically just like a USA war affecting everyone in some type of way. When there is a group of people lacking food or financial resources "the survival of the fittest mentality" may lead them to an area that has what they are lacking. Do you get my drift? And that is why a lot of crimes are committed, because some wealthy and middle class people never realize that less fortunate people prey on their possessions. I've said all this to point out how one thing affects the other. This chapter will really show how men and women affect each other mentally and physically unconsciously.

Women Run the World with Silent, Sexy Power

Backbones, motivators, persuasive, beautiful, delicate, softness, strong, are all words that describe women. Women are seen as special human beings in God's eyes. God knew from the beginning that a woman completes a man. Adam without Eve sounds like a lonely life even though men and women can have their ups and downs. A woman is so special to a man and can have a great deal of influence over him. Every successful man has a good woman beside him; and every sorry man (not all) may have a woman who didn't use her power the right way. Most people acknowledge that beside every successful man is a strong woman, but never acknowledge or try to figure out who stands beside the sorry man! Women can either help make a successful man or help break him down to nothing. The men who are becoming endangered or just in prison can easily lead back to a woman's power. If you do not understand a woman's power, this statement could be very confusing or taken the wrong way. But it is a real fact that you will begin to understand as you read this chapter. Some males like to have this hard image for the public, but most of them are soft like butter on the inside. The majorities of young guys strive toward impressing our women and will do anything to get their attention. This type of motive exists within men of all ages and most of them do not realize where some of their influence comes from. Even the animal kingdom goes through a similar process. There was a survey done on why most female animals, including humans, normally live longer than male animals. After massive research, results showed that male animals live faster and harder trying to impress their female counterparts. And the fast living revolved around how most female animals, including humans, are extremely picky on whom their mate will be for the long term. The survey showed that females in general are looking for security for their possible future family (offspring).

Influence is like the transfer of energy, which means it is never lost or destroyed. A lot of women's influence is a major reason why some men strive to be so cool without an open vision about life. Society has always directed the cause of lost black men to being in single parent homes, parents who do not raise their kids properly, the suppression from other races, or the environment that corrupts them. Those are all major factors, especially the one about parents taking responsibility, but some of the influence also comes from women in general. Most males dress in fancy clothes, start smoking at a young age, and shy away from looking too smart in school; because they think some girls want a bad boy or a thug. Now, most young males don't know what they really want out of life, but all of them want to be noticed by an attractive woman. I've experienced several women in high school saying that they prefer a bad boy or a male athlete over a guy who has good manners or is focused on his future. I strongly believe that a lot of the women that liked me in high school and college would not have taken any interest in me; if I wasn't a star athlete. Doing school work alone would have not been enough for some women; and I was not caught up into being a tough guy. But, I happened to be well-rounded, which helped me to avoid the short list of good men. There are not too many men who want to be an outcast from what women look for in a man.

So some men try to mold themselves into the person that's not beneficial later. It takes a strong-minded guy to not get trapped by any person's negative influence; because so many guys naturally focus on impressing people.

There is a big problem with this picture, because a lot of men don't realize how they are being silently influenced to act in a way that will lead them into being an endangered species. Society choosing bad boys over good men has been going on for some time, because Jesus dealt with the same concept. The people that captured Jesus gave the public a choice to pick who they wanted to let go free between Jesus and a murderer. The people picked the murderer; and Jesus was not as concerned about their opinions of him as he was about the future. This scenario could easily represent some women who choose a thug over a good guy; which results in too many men living just to impress some women who will eventually change their expectations of a man in the future. A lot of young guys feel like they can date a beautiful woman only if they have a bad boy or "thuggish" image. It's sad to say it, but a lot of young women (not all) migrate only to the guys who have no long-term future. This is when the problem starts for some young men and the negative effects follow them for the rest of their lives. Women can help influence some men into living unbalanced lives; because they begin to focus on looking cool or just being a star athlete. When males are not well-rounded at a young age; it leads to the word endangered.

Women Run the World with Silent, Sexy Power

The male athletes in high school that are considered top-notch superstars usually become the popular guys in school. And the majority of good women in all high schools migrate to the popular guys in school. Some women in school migrate to the popular guys, because they are caught up on how it makes their status look good to associate with an athlete. If the male athlete is extremely good, some women start to think about how he might have a chance of playing professional ball. The other popular guys in high school are the cool guys or 'wanna-be' thugs that women notice. And the other males who are well-rounded are somewhat invisible to the majority of the women; which helps turn the popular guys into having multiple relationships with women. Then some women get into confrontations, because they are all after the same popular guys who usually don't have a bright future ahead of them. There are way too many women focused on these types of guys at a young age, which helps lead to some men doing what women want to see in a man. Now, most popular guys know why so many young females are flocking towards them; and it leads them to spending 100 percent of their time on looking cool or playing sports instead of focusing on the future. The so-called thugs will dress nice to make women think they have a lot of money from selling drugs. If a man is selling drugs, its only short-term money that will eventually come to an end. The athletes that are good may make it to the professional level and they may not; so what does a use-to-be good superstar have in the end with no other good investments. The answer is nothing!

My freshmen year at Jackson State University was a big transformation year for me; because I was no longer seen as the popular athlete of the school. Four of my freshmen football teammates and I had a discussion in the dorm room one night. A lot of them were complaining about how every girl they approached looked at them with no interest. It was very amazing how everybody had the same experience; and it was all because the females didn't know us as the popular guys on campus. Everybody came to the conclusion that when we became superstars, we would have all the women flocking to us. This happened to be so true because the next three years all women ran to us and even some of the ones who overlooked us our freshmen year. If men are not careful with this bad cycle, they will not work at being well-rounded because some women never influence men to concentrate on other areas of life. It's a fact that every athlete and thug has a peak, which means they need something else going good for them to have long-term benefits. The men who sold or used drugs for the image end up getting trapped by the law; which is the start of some men becoming endangered. Those men grew up thinking that women would always surround them because of their image and status; but it's just the opposite because most women will start to expect more from a man as they mature. And some men seem to not notice how being so cool earlier in life really affects them.

There is something wrong with this picture I'm visually painting, because everything is centered on some (not all) women influencing guys to only have short-term goals. Most women don't realize the impact they have on a man's choices in life. Women are considered classy; when they are well-groomed and very intelligent. These are the women that the majority of men want as girlfriends or wives; which are long-term benefits for any woman. There is no negative effect from being beautiful and smart. But there are too many males being silently influenced to impress for the moment; which leads to unplanned career plans. Now, it is possible for men to invest while acting cool or playing ball; but it will take a strong-minded individual to do that without a woman's influence.

There is something so unique about the word time, because time shows no favoritism towards anyone. It doesn't matter what a person's race, sex or religion may be; it just continues to keep moving forward and a lot of men are victims of time. If a man has not invested toward his future, it will show up as time goes by. In due time, several men start to realize that time has passed by and women start to look for security in a man. The classy women who enrolled in college with big goals will eventually start to accomplish things in life. But a lot of the men that they used to date are still caught up in the past, which means these women begin to outgrow men like that. And what some women do not realize is that most male athletes and bad boys they may have silently influenced haven't changed at all from their past, because they didn't realize that women would change their expectations. Any woman who has accomplished things in life no longer admires a man who only has clothes, rims, or drug money; because they know that those things are not as important as a man with a career and goals. A lot of women start looking for future husbands; and they prefer a man that's well-rounded and not the man that has problems with the law. There are several women looking for a man who is on the same mental and stability level as they are, but a lot of guys are still mentally immature. There are some well-rounded men that didn't get trapped by all the negative influences, but there are plenty of men who did and are not where they should be in life. And that leads to some men being unemployed, having a low paying job, or lacking college degrees; which may turn into crooked thinking or just giving up hope. This chapter is not to blame women for all the men that are not well-rounded; it's just to point out a woman's silent influential power!! And this topic also leads me back to the word one, because each gender affects the other.

All guys should want better for themselves without having someone to influence them. But too many of them do not focus on the future; so it's time for women to change the cycle with their influential power. There is nothing wrong with women being attracted to men that have unique characteristics and talents, because it's very boring to be around anyone that has no sense of humor or style. Women have the power to influence men to be 'hip-hop' and well-rounded in all other areas. If women start persuading men to think about long-term benefits, there will be a very big increase of guys trying to set a variety of goals for themselves. And this solution is going to take younger women to stop focusing all their attention on the guys who have no balance in their life; because that is a form of handicapping a man's mind to think that women will always surround him. Once women start to distance themselves away from short-term thinking males; some men will do whatever it takes to attract the beautiful women and become very well-rounded.

Changing men into preparing for the future is not just for them; because the shortage of good, successful males really affects women too. It may be easy for women to say that they are going to be independent and successful; and feel like it's not their problem that some men are not excelling in life. But if a lot of women make it to the top without enough good men beside them, life can become very lonely to some (not all) of those women. Women that silently influence males to be short-term thinkers while they strive toward their big long-term plans are not good for society as a whole. Women persuading guys to be well-rounded are very powerful just like getting a lot of people to vote. Voting is not powerful for any party if only one sex or race is voting; because the number of votes won't add up as much compared to any party that had both sexes or all races voting. So if more women are the ones working toward the future, their power will be somewhat diluted in the end without enough men right along with them.

The truth is that this type of knowledge comes from experience. Parents really need to stay involved with their daughters and sons lives, because as people get older they understand what life is about. I have heard of several mothers trying to convince their daughters to not get involved with guys that are not well-rounded. Parents know the path that a lot of unbalanced men are headed towards and don't want their daughters caught up in very bad relationships. Older women and all parents need to continue to influence younger women not to be overwhelmed by some men who try to impress them with short-term things; and to look toward the guys that focus on being successful for the long run. Parents really need to start paying attention to their sons and stay on them about being prepared for later on in life. Any mother should know what a female would like to have as a future husband, but a lot of our mothers forget sometimes that they are really in the process of raising another woman's nightmare. Some mothers may see their sons as a ladies' man when he is younger because she sees all the women who have good futures ahead of them hanging around their sons all the time. But reality is that all classy women will not be there for the long run; so mothers must point out to their sons that women will outgrow them if they do not become well-rounded.

There are plenty of good fathers and male role models who can give advice to younger men; but an older woman knows exactly what most females expect out of a man in the future. And entertainers, school teachers, churches, and communities all need to help teach this concept to younger women and men. This concept is to show a woman's influential power and not to blame her for all the men becoming endangered, because men do have choices. Women's influential power can lead some men into college as well as the corporate world. Men should not be satisfied with just having a hard labor job, because those jobs are usually the lowest paying ones. This is where going to college gives guys the potential of not having to dig big ditches or work some job that leads to a short life. It's said that people who work hard physical jobs live a shorter life than a person sitting at a desk all day in the cool air.

All women have some of Eve's traits in them; and all men have some of Adam's traits. It's just like every child has some characteristics or traits that resembles their parents. Women have the trait to persuade and men have the characteristics to be influenced or convinced by a woman's softness with words.

Good well-rounded men are very well endangered and society needs more women to help open their eyes about what's going on in the world; because their eyes are shut or it seems like they are just sleeping their way through life. And God has given women persuasive power from the beginning of time; so now it's time for women to make men bite off the apple that symbolizes being a well rounded man. Adam was the first man to sin and Eve was the first woman to persuade a man. A snake, the serpent, told Eve about what the apple would do for her and Adam; so Eve went and convinced Adam to eat the apple. God knew that a man needed a woman to be a complete person; and the serpent knew that Eve had some influential power over Adam. A lot of men sell drugs for different reasons; but one of the reasons is to impress some women who want a bad boy who has a protective looking image and looks like he has money.

One of the most effective sources a man can gain is good guidance from women that are working toward being successful in life. Some males are not bad individuals; they are just trying to be accepted by all their peers, especially certain women. If females do not start persuading some men in positive ways that will help them for the future; some women will continue to complain about the shortage of good men. I always say good men are endangered; because there are a lot of males in the world. But if the majority of them are not doing anything positive in life or in prison, they might as well not be considered as human beings that exist. Eve persuading Adam to eat the apple was the start of a lot of after effects, which may be good or bad depending on which Garden of Eden Theory (Chapter 2) you believe! Now, all women that help influence men to not be well-rounded will lead to a bigger negative effect later on, which affects everyone in our society and increases the rate of endangered good men!

Women and men have some differences that help distinguish if a man or women has been involved in a particular situation. I can easily remember growing up that it was my sisters and mother who influenced me to be well-rounded in school; and it was my father that introduced me to playing sports. Having the females in my family and a father's influence helped me to be well-rounded.

And if you want a big scheme that causes disaster to happen without it being noticed by the public; the best person to do things undercover is a woman. For some reason, men are more bold and visible when they do anything that should not have been done. But most women know how to destroy a man without him even knowing what's going on. I have experienced being set up by a girl in my high school that led to disaster. I enjoyed myself at Jackson State and loved the football atmosphere around Jackson, MS, but it was not the university I initially wanted to attend. In high school, I was recruited by a lot of big colleges like the SEC schools. The Ole Miss Rebels was the one team that recruited me the hardest my junior year in high school; and I was becoming very interested in playing for them my senior year. The head coach for Ole Miss was the same man who recruited Mr. Ray Lewis, my favorite player, and he was set on getting me to Ole Miss. But there was a change that was about to happen at Ole Miss while I was still in high school; the whole coaching staff was moving to Auburn University the next year. This was a big change for me; because the school I wanted to play for no longer had the coaches that were recruiting me. I was pretty much focused on playing for one of the SEC schools in Mississippi. So I started focusing all of my attention on Mississippi State University whose staff was recruiting me very hard as well. The official signing day of high school athletes was only two weeks away and I had passed my ACT. During my junior year and senior year in high school, I had this crazy girlfriend that I was involved with but it was nothing near serious. We became good friends but we did not have a commitment anymore; because I was very focused on football and what I was going to major in at college. My choices of colleges had pretty much been narrowed down to Mississippi State University; and the coach from the school was planning a visit with me and my family. The girl I use to talk to had a cousin that liked me and I didn't even know her cousin. My ex-girlfriend didn't like any girl she thought who may have had some interest in me and we didn't even talk any more.

One day I was getting out of class and was walking to my car; and this guy that I knew stopped me and said that my car was scratched up with one flat tire. When I got to my car it had curse words on it that were visible, so I freaked out and had a temper tantrum. There was this guy who I had noticed in the past that didn't like me because he thought his girlfriend liked me; so I started thinking that he was the guy who did it. I walked back to his classroom and asked the guy to come out in the hallway. Then I pushed him against the wall full of anger. He kept telling me he had nothing to do with the car and eventually his teacher came outside trying to figure out what happened. And the guy kept telling me he did not have anything to do with it. The teacher in the classroom called the principal after I left and headed back to look at my car. On my way to the car, the coach from Mississippi State pulled up and was ready to talk to me. The coach told me that he would be down soon to meet my family, but I didn't know what day. When I saw him I was very shocked; because I was not having a good day. I tried to hide what was going on while I was talking to the coach in the gym. Then my principal came up to the gym and started talking about what happened right in front of the college coach. The coach started looking displeased about what was going on; but the guy still followed me to the house to meet my parents.

My mother was listening to the coach talk closely and once he left she picked up how he seemed uninterested about signing me. So that night I just rode around trying to figure out what really happened and my ex-girlfriend told me that she saw her cousin walk up there at some point in the day. Now the big rumor was going on around the school that this girl had scratched up my car; but she and I knew that we had never dated each other or even talked on the phone. But I was beginning to think that she may have done it, because my ex-girlfriend told me that she saw her walk up towards my car that day. Finally, that girl's mother called me that night; because her daughter was crying and she kept saying that her daughter would not do anything like that. So the coach from Mississippi State called a couple of days later and told me they had run out of scholarships. And the signing day was two days away. So, I had a very hard time dealing with everything; and I quickly called Jackson State to see if it wasn't too late for me to receive a full scholarship there. They were recruiting me very hard, but I was set on going to Ole Miss or Mississippi State. Jackson State was very excited about receiving me and I ended up receiving a full scholarship to play football in college.

Later on as time went by, I found out that it was my ex-girlfriend who had vandalized my car that day and wanted to frame her cousin to make me mad at her. This girl did all that just to keep another woman from around me and hurt me at the same time. She never told me out of her mouth that she did it; but I found out through other sources. It was very strange to me; because she was still trying to be my friend while I was in college. I believe she regrets to this day what she did; because my father would always say that the girl really liked me but truly feared other women that liked me. This girl was a good example of showing how a lady could destroy something a man is doing without him even knowing what's going on. A lot of women are capable of setting up things that can be very dangerous to a man that is not paying attention. So all women, especially the attractive smart ones, need to realize that setting up a man could be the reason why you may have certain problems; because God sees what everybody is doing. I have heard several cases of women setting up preachers or celebrities with the word rape. This is also a form of a woman out-thinking a man to get what she desires; which can destroy the good men that have made it in life or are trying to do something positive. But if a man does rape a woman, I'm all for the punishment the rapist receives. I think that's one of the worst things a man can do, and I think that a woman falsely accusing someone of rape is just as bad! Now there are a lot of women who do not try to out think men in evil ways.

I have met several women that had men's best interest at heart. Especially, when I experienced one of the biggest let downs of my life. And that's the 2003 NFL Draft. It was a hard time but the females in my family and father kept me going; because I could have easily given up on life after the let downs from my high school and college years. But I eventually made it to the Tampa Bay Buccaneer's mini camp and realized how women in my life were leading me to my passion of opening everyone eyes to a "Woman's positive & negative power". There needs to be more women who will stick with men who hit hard times, instead of moving on to the next man who may have something bigger going on. I have seen a lot of women hanging around certain guys just to see what they could get out of the deal; which means that those women would not stick around if something happened bad to those men. And this topic also brings me to a lot of younger women dating only older guys. Yes, it's true that some women mature faster than guys. But a lot of younger ladies see a financially stable man as a mature man. Now, that doesn't necessarily mean he is mature; it could very well be that he just has money and no type of maturity.

A lot of older guys know that some (not all) women will fall for any money they put in their face. Some women don't realize that the older guys have no more than what a younger man will have, it's just most younger guys have not had enough time to come into their own. So this can easily influence any younger male to start selling drugs just to be able to compete against an older man who acts like a sugar daddy. This creates a pattern of men and women not being equal partners in the end. Women are more sexually active than guys as they get older. So is a 25-year-old woman sexually satisfied or just on the same mental level with a 55-year-old man or is she just there for his money? Then you have older men taking Viagra and younger guys selling drugs in order to attract some short term thinking women. But this doesn't only affect men, because a 25 year old woman could be wasting time off her life with an older guy who will not be there for the long run. Then you end up with older single women looking for a man who is either married or a younger guy. These women have established careers and realize that older men are interested in younger women, so they turn to somebody who is in their sexual peak. Now, if more women start to help influence men get to think long term; it may (not a guarantee) help decrease some men from selling drugs and women will be with an equal partner in the end.

My immediate family was also backbones to me when I was starting to really distance myself from God and church (my heart). I had stopped going to church, because I was losing my faith and was tired of being done wrong. The females in my life and father talked me back into going to church. They were all working together. So as a whole, they all influenced me back into church (my heart); which was a very positive thing to do. This just shows that women need to continue influencing men in positive ways and not in short-term things that will hurt good men in the end as well as themselves.

Now anything natural like oceans, the sun, stars, trees, oil, diamonds and etc. are seen as very powerful sources. Society refers to natural things as Mother Nature. So the world's real true strength is based off women. But God has to protect some women from their strength through a Godly man. That's why men are seen as protectors of women, because God wants men to protect women and his word. When Adam ate the fruit, God directed all his attention toward Adam because he was really supposed to protect Eve from her persuasive power. Now, all men are not ready to protect their women unless they have some type of spiritual knowledge. Any man that does not have a spiritual connection with God can easily be destroyed with a woman's silent, sexy ways. God intended for man and woman to run the world with different strengths as equal partners. I would have to say that women are stronger than the majority of men through silent power.

Women's Positive Influence

There has been a discussion going on about The Da Vinci Code book. The main thing the book talks about is Mary, supposedly a prostitute, who is Jesus' number one disciple and intimate partner. It was said that Mary was the one who influenced his disciples to continue preaching the Gospel after Jesus died on the cross. Then, The Da Vinci Code explains that Mary was the real influential leader who persuaded men like Peter to go on and be a physical leader. It is a good possibility that society just wanted to hide the power of a woman. History also shows that Abraham Lincoln, the 16th president, put an end to slavery; but it was a woman (Susan B. Anthony) who influenced him to end it. The great Frederick Douglass was an African-American leader around Abraham Lincoln's era. Frederick Douglass was a man who overcame being born a slave; and it was a woman who taught Mr. Douglass how to read. The late Rosa Parks is a very well-known name, but it's nowhere near as publicized as Martin Luther King, Jr. Rosa Parks is actually the birth mother of the Civil Rights Movement; which influenced Martin (the physical leader) to protest and march for civil rights. This leads me to another woman who brought a lot of attention to the Civil rights movement.

Women's Negative Influence

She was the evil woman who went and told her husband that a black boy (age 14) whistled at her in Money, MS. The black boy, Emmitt Till, was killed in a brutal way all due to the woman being able to convince her husband to actually do it. Now, Mr.

Women Run the World with Silent, Sexy Power

Emmitt Till's mother was just like Rosa Parks; because she had an open casket for the whole world to see what happened to her son. This also helped to get the Civil Rights movement energized. Now, Jacob is the man seen as a con artist in the Bible; because he tricked Isaac (his father) into blessing him with Esau's birth rights. But a lot of people fail to acknowledge that Rebekah (Jacob's Mother) was the one who influenced Jacob to trick everyone. Jacob was skeptical of doing it at first; but his mother, Rebekah, used her persuasive power and he eventually gave into it.

Women's Positive Influence

Moses is seen as one of the greatest leaders ever. The great Moses was actually born a slave. But, Moses natural mother saved his life right at birth by sailing him across a river from male baby killers. Then it was a woman who found Moses in the sailing basket. The woman who found him took care of him, while other people told her that it was a dangerous thing to do. But she had a spiritual connection that she was supposed to raise Moses (Leader). So Moses leading the slaves out of Egypt was due to Godly women saving his life before he became a very great leader. And let's not forget about Ms. Harriet Tubman who influenced and led black slaves to freedom. All women have influential power that can cause a big positive movement; if they get the physical leader, the man, energized in the right direction. God made most men physically stronger for a reason. He also made women very persuasive and emotional for a reason as well. Women are better caretakers or nurtures than the average man due to their natural gift of emotions.

Both (men and women) natural gifts are supposed to be combined for the betterment of the world.

Now, New York is seen as the head of the United States. New York is also referred to as the Big Apple. That's something I was always curious about, so I researched it and found several different answers. But one of the answers stuck out in my mind. There was once a woman by the name of Evelyn who came from Europe and started a play house for men to come see lovely ladies. And people started calling the ladies Eve's apples, because Evelyn's name was similar to Eve who convinced Adam to eat the apple. So people all over New York started referring to that place as the Big Apple. We all know that a lot of things originated out of New York like fashion and hip hop. So it was a woman who may have influenced the center piece of the U.S.A to be called the Big Apple.

There is a word that a lot of spiritual people refer to the Lord as—The Rock! The rock means my foundation and strength. The rock gives a foundation for the church to sit on. And the church is considered to be the bride (woman) that continues to influence God's children with the word (The Gospel). The church is our mother who rests on our father (The Rock), so she can use all her persuasive power for good.

The education system is also a place where a woman's influence is strong, because there are more female teachers than males. So the basic education that our present and future leaders, lawyers, doctors, entrepreneurs and athletes received, are heavily influenced by WOMEN!! A lot of female teachers have played a very big role in the people that we admire like our President Barack Obama and the great Michael Jordan!

My last word relating to women are Beautiful!! God made all women by far the sexier being. The history channel was once talking about how the beauty of women attracted Angels to come out of heaven to have sexual relationships with them (opinion or fact). Then, they created giant babies that were very destructive to the world; because it was not in God's will. And Angels do come out of heaven; because Lucifer was an angel that was said to have been kicked out of heaven due to disobedience. So, that made me think about dinosaurs and the mythology guy that supposedly held the world up. I am talking about Atlantis, the giant, may have been a real person. I'm not saying it is a fact, but I want all women to realize that you'll have the influential power to help hold the world up or help destroy it!
